I would like to object to the re-zoning of my area at South Ripley away from its local area. The current proposed plan has the area split away from the local area in which everything feeds and is part of from a community stand point. The greenbank built up area is completely devoid of South Ripley and I do not believe that area would have any idea what our area is like or what it needs. I also believe they would have no interest in looking after my area equally as their own. For the past 10 years I have been in the Ripley, South Ripley, Springfield area and we have our own community, facilities and shared concerns for the local area. Thing like the Centenary highway and community ammenteties being built and provided. By splitting up this area into 3 different zones you divide and conquer our collective voices. Maybe that's the point. South Ripley and greenbank are separated by bush land and not even directly linked. I want the area I live in and the surrounding suburbs to belong to the same zone so we can hold the same people responsible for local issues. I believe this idea is terrible and is an insult to the people who share this area together. Out local living standards are directly connected and therefore must be under one zone.
