Hi

It's really cute that a population growth in SEQ, which already gets the bulk of state funding and attention now has us thinking we should redistribute the electoral boundaries to reinforce that trend, whilst taking representation away from rural areas, and making electorates bigger, covering more towns, with conflicting interests.

Conversely you want to split up Brisbane so suburbs get more individual representation.

The inequality of this concept actually infringes on our human rights and the right to be represented.

To put it in simple terms, in my opinion, you can take your proposed changes and [REDACTED] off to Victoria, where you can enjoy daylight saving, which is another brain fart you idiots keep going on with.
