Submission:

I object to the proposed changes to the electorate reallocation. Our member already has a huge area to cover to serve his constituents. If you want to change things go back to the original plan and make the electorates in the city smaller and to allow for more electorates in the regional areas. To give all constituents access to their elected representatives. Having so many electorates in south east Queensland means unfair treatment to those in regional areas. Callide electorate is already over 74000 square kilometres in size. How is one man supposed to cover that area and give all the constituents fair representation. This electorate is not the largest electorate in Queensland either. Does that really seem fair?
