Submission:

I live in Eumundi and note the proposal to move Eumundi to the new Nambour electorate, using the rail line as justification for this. This makes no sense to me- Eumundi is and has always been Noosa hinterland and shares much more in common with Noosa than Nambour including most of the services I use and rely on. The obvious boundary for this area is the Bruce Highway with everything east of the highway in the Noosa electorate, with the Noosa Nambour boundary to the south of Eumundi. The argument that the proposed change would balance voter numbers is thin, with this change probably only affecting hundreds of voters. The Coolom electorate is proposed to have almost 43,000- certainly Noosa can include Eumundi and still be well below this number.
