Most of the revenue provided to both state and federal governments is derived from industries located away from highly populated areas but it is in those same areas the money is spent.

. Now you are proposing to create even more vast electoral areas which will deny those living away from the east coast less representation than the little they get now. it would appear that fairness of representation is limited solely to highly populated areas only. City and some close regional electorates can be covered by bicycle in a morning - whilst the vast areas consisting inland ones take hours of travel. So much in fact one member has purchased his own aircraft so that he may cover his electorate to be available to his constituents. It would appear that fairness to all is not on the agenda.
